Further Artist Engagement

1. FIRST NATIONS AND PUBLIC ART

Five Principles of Engaging First Nations Artists & Communities. The WWHS Public Art Process will follow the NSW Government Public Art Toolkit Principles of:

- Cultural authenticity and agency
- Recognising rights and maintaining culture
- Prior informed consent and consultation
- Integrity of Aboriginal Culture
- Attribution and showing of benefits

It is essential that First Nations stories and art should come from the First Nations people. It is important to understand the ownership and sensitivities of cultural material, heritage and practices, and to acknowledge the rights of the First Nations peoples.

It is only through collaboration with First Nations peoples that this can be achieved.

2. COMMISSIONING THE ARTIST

Through the commissioning process, aims and objectives can be agreed upon, differences of taste and opinion can come to the surface, and unity of outlook and purpose can be found.

Understanding how to commission an artist is ideal:

- Who will be commissioned? An individual artist for a small project, a team for larger architectural or infrastructure project, or, a community-led team of members of the broader community.
- Involving the artist early. This gives the artist time for preparation and community consultation.
- Understand the artist's situation. This includes their personal timeframe, negotiation of an appropriate fee, their access to services to prepare submissions, and confirmation of intellectual property and ownership.
- Avoiding conflicts of interest.

Refer to NSW Government's Public Art Toolkit (Published 2022):

Self Portrait, Cameron Bloom, 2014

3. ARTIST SELECTION CRITERIA CHECKLIST

Qualifications and relevant experience when selecting an artist:

- Evidence of a high level of artistic merit and quality in their previous work, essentially a resume of past experience and references.
- Awareness of design durability, materiality, and finishes in relation to external impacts ie. vandalism, weatherproofing, etc.
- Demonstrates the ability to think conceptually and to communicate a unique vision.
- Produces work with a high degree of technical expertise.
- Flexibility in scheduling and ability to work flexibly in a collaborative team environment.
- Experience in project design management and working within a budget.
- Demonstrates professional approach to process and presentations.
- Show understanding and awareness of legalities, and financial and risk frameworks.
- Ability to meet deadlines and timeframes including contingencies for changes and revisions.
- Experience in community consultation and working with a broad range of community members.

In the selection of an artist's concept:

- Overall quality and the strength of the concept.
- Interest in issues relevant to the project.
- Artistic expertise in merit, ambition, inventiveness, innovation, originality, and integrity.
- Suitability to the project brief.
- Suitability to the project site and context.
- Ability of the artwork to enrich the public environment and increase the public's access to contemporary art.
- Demonstration of awareness of the community attitudes and concerns, and invites community support.
- Technical feasibility, quality of production, and the ability to successfully realise the proposal.
- Inclusion of design specifications, material choices, suitability for location, safety plan, etc.
- Consistency with relevant planning, urban design, heritage and environmental legislation, policies and Plans of Management.

Public Art Plan

Post Delivery

MEDIA

Engagement between Wee Waa High School and media is ongoing, managed through the Schools Infrastructure Community Engagement Officers assigned to the project. The key intent is to ensure accuracy of the information provided on the completed Public Art, as well as clear attribution to the Artists who complete the works.

A key opportunity of the Proposed Public Art at Wee Waa High School is to continue the school's engagement with local community members and organisations.

COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

Ongoing community engagement in the Public Art Plan will follow the guidelines as outlined in the NSW Public Art Toolkit.

The Public Art Plan provided is not only a guide to the public proposal for completion of the new School on the relocated site. It should also be used as a framework to continue to engage with the local community with Public Art, in many forms, to the benefit of both the school staff & students as well as the local community.

Hi Meina,

Thank you for the opportunity to be able to comment on the Wee Waa High School Public Art Plan. The Public Art Advisory committee were excited to have a glimpse of where you are heading and get an idea of what the look and feel will be for this great space. We have used a Public Art Assessment checklist that covers a variety of things to consider.

Please see below for our comments:

- Good visibility of Public Art from entrance
- Powerful representation of the First Nations community
- Strong Consultation with First Nations community
- The non-Indigenous and multi-cultural part of the community doesn't seem represented in the consultation process, narratives or in any physically visible way
- Good accessibility for all students
- Lack of actions and processes included in the plan
- Excellent idea of including works from the old school site

Questions/suggestions:

- Is the art attractive to the younger generation – maybe include more graphics that are used in areas such as Newtown etc - <https://theculturetrip.com/pacific/australia/articles/a-street-art-tour-of-newtown-with-its-local-artists>
- Did you consult with the Wee Waa Community Arts and Cultural Centre – they will have a list of local artists – Lisa Almagro – 0429 925 992
- Did you consult with the Wee Waa Chamber of Commerce – Sonia Fogarty - 0428 953473
- Are local artists being used for works that match their skill set
- Are materials being sourced locally where possible
- Was there strong consultation with the wider community
- Is there any works that the local community could be part of – creating a sense of ownership
- It would be good to include an overview of how you will manage engaging appropriate artists

Hope these comments are of assistance and please reach out if you would like to discuss further.

Good luck with the project.

Hi Meina,

We held our Public Art Advisory Committee meeting last night and discussed the Wee Waa High School Public Art Plan.

There was lots we liked about it and there were also some questions and comments.

Due to it being a long weekend, I won't get this to you till next week.

Just wanted to keep you up to date.

Hi Meina,

As our Public Art Advisory Committee has just formed, our first meeting will be tied up with ensuring all members are aware of their responsibilities and also the different processes to assess Public Art projects. Due to this we won't be able to discuss your Public Art Plan at this meeting but I will ensure it is table it at the next meeting which means we will have a response for you by the end of September.

Hope this meets your timeline.

Good morning Meina,

A quick email to acknowledge receipt of this information.

As an update, we have arranged for a copy of the Public Art Plan to be referred to our Public Art Advisory Committee. The Committee will meet in the near future and we will provide corresponding advice accordingly.

My colleague Scott Pollock (Manager Tourism & Cultural Services) is taking carriage of the consultations on the Public Art Plan and will be in touch directly. Eloise's Team will touch base if anything is required in respect of the Mitchell Street WAD.

Thanks Meina.
